Thank you for participating in the Introductory Webinars for the Healthcare Partners Emergency Preparedness and Communications Project. The goal of the webinars was to provide basic emergency preparedness information to participants in all levels of preparedness. To build on the information presented during the webinars, the University of Colorado Denver Center for Integrated Disaster Health Preparedness is hosting FREE workshops for community health partners across Colorado to assess current preparedness capabilities, enhance coordination, and strengthen community health partnerships and community resilience.

Each workshop will be customized for the region based on their previous emergency preparedness activities and existing emergency coordination structures including healthcare coalitions. If you would like to be involved in the development of your region's workshop, please contact Debra or Ginny at the information below. We will be happy to incorporate your feedback as we develop the workshops with the advisory team.

The workshops will enhance existing healthcare coalition activities, promote expanding coalitions to include additional community health partners, and bring together emergency planning groups across the region for networking and information sharing.

Participants are asked to come with knowledge of ICS 100 or 100.Hc and 700; with ICS 200 and 800 recommended. FEMA Independent Study ICS Course information available at <http://training.fema.gov/IS/crslist.asp>.

Plan now to join us in strengthening emergency preparedness of community health partners in Colorado. Registration information can be found at <http://allclearmg.com/communityhealth/workshop>.

*Hospitals are welcome to attend as a mentor of an affiliated health clinic. Workshops are designed for community health partners, not hospital emergency managers.
